Self-Reflection with a Kick!

by Peter Hamilton, SAM President

I wanted to write you an article to bring value to someone somewhere in their role as an administrator and I thought what better topic than self-reflection. Sometimes self-reflection is the hardest pill to swallow in life and in administration! I start out by expressing my gratitude and feeling humbled and honored to serve as the 2019-20 School Administrators of Montana President. Currently, I hold the position of Principal at Polson High School located on the beautiful shores of Flathead Lake. Starting my 17th year in education, I have never been more excited for a school year than the upcoming one and I wanted to give a brief summary on self-reflection and the power it has on my preparation for the school year.

At the end of every year as a leader, I started my own tradition to learn and grow. I ask my staff three questions before they check out for the end of another school year. My goal is to listen and give them the opportunity to talk as I take notes and practice building my skills as a great listener. When the teacher finishes a question, I move on to the next question. There are moments of awkward silence during the meeting. I try not to talk, I shake my head and just listen which is sometimes the most difficult part. Our brains tend to want to make a response instead of listening. We immediately jump to thoughts of problem solving or wanting to reassure the person and holding those thoughts in without blurt them out is sometimes hard! I do my best to sit quietly.

The reflection for myself and the perception given from my staff gives me a lot to think about. The real work begins after all staff members have had time to answer the questions and I sit back and think about what I can work on over the summer to become a better leader for our school.

The three questions I ask are as follows: What was one thing you are most proud of this year? What is one thing you did not like this year? What is one constructive piece of feedback that could help me become a better leader?

Asking staff to help me with their answers, looking for feedback and finding out the perceptions of the staff can impact a school when you truly take time to listen. After processing the information, I then move to researching books to help grow my mindset and bring awareness to issues I can control in myself and my position as a leader. I can only control me. I start the year off after using the feedback from those questions.

This summer my feedback from staff lead me to read a few books to sprout some ideas and give some direction for where to go next in my leadership journey.

The first book was The Five Dysfunctions of a Team by Patrick Lencioni. The book was a great read on how to get everyone on your team rowing in the same direction. The story is about Kathrine who takes over a company which is surviving but not thriving and in turn, builds a team with a foundation built on trust, commitment, accountably, and results. The book is a must read for any school administrator.

Shifting the Monkey by Todd Whitaker is a great read for Principals new to the position or new to a school wanting to do everything possible to make people feel important and valued. A principal wears a multitude of hats and has a stressful position. Every year there are more expectations and demands placed on schools with limited budgets and federal mandates not making anything easier. Mr. Whitaker's concept of shifting the workload to a shared responsibility and not taking on more responsibilities (monkeys) which could be handled by someone else. The book also talks about leaders not shifting their own responsibilities on their hardest workers as well. The concepts in the book are easy to understand and I still face the challenge as a new administrator in a new building to implement change and growth by using these concepts.

One of the most important things a school leader can do is self-reflect every year to understand what is important and to focus on what can be done differently. Reflection leads to many positive outcomes and has helped me become a better leader each year.
I look forward to working with all of you this year and if I can help anyone please let me know.

Supporting Administrators as You Practice the Greatest Profession!

by Kirk Miller, SAM Executive Director

The 2019-20 school year begins with enthusiasm and energy that our excited students bring with anticipation of growing and learning. Our quality educators in Montana schools, actively engaging our students during these first couple of days, match that excitement. This is a whole community event where parents and the greater community have really looked forward to the restart of school and activities and all of those wonderful events that hold the center of attention in Montana communities. This collective excitement does not happen by chance, and behind every successful effort to create this healthy, wonderful environment for learning is a quality Montana administrator who worked diligently these past couple of months to insure this atmosphere of success! So, I begin this school year with a thank you to over 1000 Montana school and district administrators who have chosen the greatest profession for the great work you have done to get the 2019-20 school year off to a great start!

Your professional association, SAM, has been paying attention to creating supports for administrators that will help you as the school year gets underway. That attention is centered around the goals of the SAM Strategic Plan, adopted by the SAM Board of Directors and the living, breathing strategic objectives and actions that make the plan alive and useful. I hope that this year you will connect with and use the many resources that have been created to assist you in your work. To start this year out, I’m sharing with you the resources that have been created to assist you in your review.

CoSN Empowered Superintendent Initiative & Driving K-12 Innovation Report

The Consortium for School Networking (CoSN) and its state affiliate chapter, Montana Educational Technologists Association (META) are pleased to continue to support the work of current and aspiring superintendents and district leadership teams in leading all aspects of digital learning transformations.

We begin this new school year with a look at the CoSN Empowered Superintendent Initiative and the recently released CoSN Driving K-12 Innovation Report. The CoSN Empowered Superintendent Initiative was initially created when CoSN and AASA, The School Superintendents Association, joined together to create The Empowered Superintendent Toolkit, available for download at http://www.cosn.org/superintendents. The toolkit provides free high quality resources for superintendents and school leaders to support their work in leading digital transformations. In July of this year, CoSN and AASA announced a new partnership agreement that will continue the collaboration of these two associations in helping PreK-12 leaders lead and leverage technology tools for learning and school operations.

CoSN has partnered with edWeb to provide a monthly webinar series on topics essential for leading digital transformations. School superintendents serve as panelists on each webinar and share their stories and expertise. Every webinar is recorded for viewing by those who are not able to join the live broadcast. Season 2 of the CoSN/edWeb Empowered Superintendent webinar series begins on Monday, September 9 at 4:00 pm CT with a review of the Empowered Superintendent Toolkit and a look at the CoSN Driving K-12 Innovation report. Devorah Kerr, Superintendent of Brown Deer School District, WI (and current president of AASA) and David Schuler, Superintendent of High School District 214, IL (and chair of the CoSN Superintendent Advisory Panel) join Keith Krueger, CoSN CEO, as webinar guest panelists. Learn more and register for this free webinar - as well as access the recordings of last season’s webinars - at this link: https://home.edweb.net/supers/.

If your school or district would like more information about joining CoSN or getting more involved with CoSN, please contact Brian Calvary, CAE, CoSN Director of Membership and Chapters, at bcalvary@cosn.org.
