

Professional Bio: Tyler Rablin

Tyler Rablin is an award-winning instructional coach for Sunnyside School District in Sunnyside, WA. Previously, he taught English Language Arts at the high school level. He is also the owner of Tyler Rablin Consulting; is a contributing writer for publications like Edutopia, EdSurge, and EdWeek; and has been a featured speaker at conferences around the Pacific Northwest for his work with assessment and instructional technology. He is a signed author with Times10 Publishing and has a forthcoming book titled Hacking Student Motivation. His educational passion is focused on the ways that intentional technology integration, modernized assessment strategies, and strong cultures of learning can allow us to provide meaningful, powerful, and personal learning experiences for each of our students. In his personal life, he enjoys reading, running, wildlife photography, and spending time hiking and camping with his wife and two dogs.